EPA endangerment report leaked

The draft of EPA's endangerment report has been leaked. As EPA is preparing to rule everyone's life in the US, this report makes interesting reading: it is practically a copy/paste exercise, copying mostly from the IPCC and the ACIA reports (and the CCSP = Climate Change Science Program). So do not expect anything new, just a hotch-potch from here and there. I shudder when reflecting that this will be the exemplary climate science laying the foundations for EPA's future activities in GHG control.
