

meteoLCD Weblog

A weblog on climate, global change and climate measurements

« ClimateGate

Copenhagen cop15: R.I.P. »

Climate refugees

The subject of millions of poor people driven out of their countries or their homes by the consequences of climate change (mostly rising sea level) is one of the great recurrent scares; suggesting that these millions of people will submerge wealthier countries makes for much goose pimples and hair rising in the audience. That these scenarios are (and have been) absolutely overblown results from a new study that says that much fewer (than projected) refugees will leave their country (strange to still call people NOT leaving their country "refugees"!):

"In general, countries expect to manage environmental migration internally, with the exception of small island states that in some cases have already led to islands disappearing under water, forcing international migration" says this report.

I have strong doubts on the reality of these islands which supposedly have disappeared due to climate change, and would have liked some concrete verifiable examples. During these COP15 days everybody screams about rising sea-levels, whereas the data of the University of Colorado in Boulder clearly show a slowing rise (that is the rate of change is lower since about 2002).

Comment Reblog Subscribe ...

Share this:

Related

There will be no climate wars
April 22, 2011

TIR Lëtzebuerg 2016: the Rifkin report \(part 4\)
November 21, 2016
With 5 comments

New book from NAP: Climate Stabilization Targets \(1\)
February 21, 2011

This entry was posted on December 8, 2009 at 21:21 and is filed under 1. You can follow any responses to this entry through the RSS 2.0 feed. You can leave a response, or trackback from your own site.

One Response to "Climate refugees"

golden kreasi nova Says:

June 15, 2016 at 04:23 | Reply

Hi there! This article couldn't be written any better!

Looking through this article reminds me of my previous roommate! He always kept preaching about this. I'll forward this post to him. Fairly certain he'll have a good read. Thanks for sharing!

Leave a comment